

Estate planning for Blended families

A family is blended where one or both parents have children from former relations. This is quite tricky for because the emotional attachment parents attach on their children. In some cases each partner want only to bequeath only their biological children.

- Consider the following
- Wills from previous relations
- The assets you need to devolve
- Discuss how you wish to devolve the property
- Try to be fair to the children. Remember they will be alone when you are gone
- Seek the advice of an advocate because it is usually an area laced with legal hurdles
